"The appeal of a great Gigondas is visceral in nature. A great Gigondas is more akin to a wild beast than anything else; its nose is savage and untamed, full of the smells of the region it inhabits. For over 200 years, the Chauvet family has captured that feral animale in their rustic, rich reds; unfinned and unfiltered, a country wine of supreme delight! It is a must-try for fans of southern Rhone wines!"

The name says it all: 1806. That was the year vigneron Bernard Chauvet's forebears built the caves of Grapillon D'Or, scratching the year into the still-wet mortar framing the entrance in commemoration of the event. Now, over 200 years later, Bernard and daughter Céline still craft bold, terroir-driven red wines from their 15 acres planted to Grenache and Syrah. Hand-sorting with no de-stemming, long maceration, and aging for 12 months in old barrels assures that these gorgeous, savage wines capture the mystery and flavors of this famed region of France. Full-bodied, bursting with rich cassis, dried herbs, and garrigue; becoming soft and sensual on the mid-palate, and finishing long and memorably.

Best enjoyed now - 6 years.
