“What are your favorite sounds of summer?

Maybe the sizzle of the grill? Perhaps the plink of the Little League bats? Given the scorchers we’ve had lately, it might be the mechanical rumble of the A/C kicking on!

The Corkscrew would like to suggest a new sound to try out. We think it will become one of your favorite sounds of summer: The cork popping from a bottle of delicious, refreshing Vinho Verde!

On a hot day, nothing sounds (or tastes) better!”

A proud tradition of Portuguese winemaking unfolds as you trace the history of Caves Messias. Since 1926, these estates have produced honest, delicious wines that honor both their terroir and the hands that guided the fruit from vine to bottle. In this case, those hands belong to João Soares, who farms his granitic soil naturally, bringing forth excellent examples of both the Louriero and Pedernã varietals. By using strict temperature control during fermentation, João harnesses the innate vibrancy of his fruit, which in turn translates into a very joyful drinking experience! Pale in color, with intense aromas of citrus and peach and a lively mouthfeel (with a bit of effervescence!) this wine is SUPER-refreshing!
